You will see that I had put into Thornton's hands the whole of my little inheritance together with two years' interest, which I had allowed to accumulate, my salary for the last two years having been amply sufficient for my wants. I am satisfied that it would have been a lucky thing for me if I had lost every cent of it. But, as it happened, Thornton's instinct was not fault, he sold out at just the right mo ment, and I found myself as he had pre dicted, worth $20,000 besides several odd hundreds with which I indulged in champagne, game suppers, and some other expensive luxuries which I had hitherto entirely avoided.

I had self-control enough to deposit my money in bank, keep my secret, and attend steadily to my regular business. Just before the office was about to close, one day. Jackson entered and told one of the junior clerks he wished to speak with the senior partner. Although he remained in my room during the time the youth went with the message, he took not the slightest notice of me, but, with perfect command of countenance, looked about him till his eye fell upon him, when he showed no more appearance of recognition than if I had been a total stranger. He was soon after ushered into the senior partner's office, and I, closing my desk, put on my nat, and, in a state of terror it would be mpossible to describe, returned home. munishment of the guilty to be enforced through the ballot bex.

For this outrage upon the right of self-government the Republican party and its chosen managers are primarily responsible; but the men who have taken office through such means, and who are actually exercisin the power of Government upon such authority are scarcely less guilty than they who conceived and executed this unparalled political swindle.

The Fraudulent President and his advisors having undertaken to forsake the ancient ways of the Republican party and having invited a Democrat and a former Rebel to occupy one of the mest important offices in the Cabinet, propose to debauch the honest public sentiment of the South by the bestowal of offices and by an enormous system of Government subsides for ralroads and canals, hoping thus to complete in corruption the work begun in fraud. At the same time with hypocritical pretenses of reforming the civil service, they flatter the vanity of Northern theorists to the end that the great crime in which this Administration is founded may be overlooked and condoned. Against this complex scheme, as ag inst the conspi rs with whom it originated, we call upon the people ommence immediately a campaign alike merciles the that from the bening to the end THE SUN shall never be foun overent.

Our old friends and readers, a body of about a mile on readers—the same number as the majority of white citizens who, in November last, voted for samuel J. Tilden for President—we need only say that we shall continue hereafter, as in the rast, to contend for honest, real reform, economy, and justice in public affairs, and that we shall still endeavor to supply all who may consult our columns with careful, complete and irustworthy accounts of current events and news from every part of the world while from Washington especially, our reports will

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver. DAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder-blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER
